

when Mahomedan superstition releases the tomb one night in the year. There are, ready to claim or push a former acquaintance according to the spirit in which are met and welcomed; expansive about remote, and reserved as to the recent past. They have found, or more or less under the influence of champagne, have been thrown down steadily towards the lowest degradation clinging to observing Epsom week more respectable men of growing world do to the high festivals of the Church, would stamp him hopelessly with the shadow among which he scrambles for a footing he known to renounce it, and accordingly often goes at a serious sacrifice rather than from any definite hope of gain. Then have all the dissipated of the numerous classes, rough-voiced, coarse-mannered, foul-mouthed come out meaning get drunk of malice prepense. Among the publicans and tradesmen running their spruce-carts, whose actions they ought to be in tolerable training for formidable debauch of the day; clerks, shopmen who have drawn on the till to go on the favourite, felons in embryo whose lands or plants them this time.

Felons in full swing and occupation are in abundance. All the criminality of metropolis and the élite from the province has given itself rendezvous. The fingered fraternity are in their element combining business with pleasure gives address to their labours. Saturnine crackades strutting through the crowd, condescending temptation to the triviality of filching a shilling from the pocket and later on a head instead of a shawl of immense opportunity offers. Swarms of small, ragged little gamins, not equal to us, as yet, but eager to learn and, by the example of their betters, after them in the rich harvest field where is so much room for all. It is so seldom find squads of carriage company and battalions of well-to-do pedestrians focussed apphixated all ready to your hands dragged beer and the fumes of poisoned pagne. Towards afternoon especially it is very made easy on a great scale, and a have to complain of is the embarrassment choice. The police are far more occupied with the course than in looking after who line it. The spectators, wedged in against the ropes, are flushed and kicked and drink, while their thoughts and eyes are the horses who come sweeping up. You pursue your investigations into their pocket leisure, and all you have to fear is that you have been anticipated, although it is pointed, your busy hands may meet other there on a similar errand of industry. Among subsidiary amusements for the million the silver and copper bells—the lotteries—the blanks go to the public and the prizes the sleeping partners, and the racing but that are carefully grooved and arranged so that the stakes shall set steadily towards the prize. The pressure of the pea and thimble are by their legendary in retired nook steadily avoiding the observation of the coated myrmidons of morality. Proprietors "Aunt Sallies" carry their testimonials inscribed on their faces in hang-dog looks, eyes, and bloated lips. Individuals, stock-in-trade is a worn clothes brush to you their services with an insinuating w. There may be, and no doubt are, many men among those who profess to turn honest living by chance jobs during Epsom week, but as a class the ignoble predominating voltingly on their features. With savage shrew eyes like starving hyenas, they are cunning and a bullies by inclination, as the best of the worst female companions between. It is a relief to the female companions between bred scamps to the truculent and from country districts, whose rude health looks of bivouacs under hedges than of close wards, who carry possible murder written their looks and tickets-of-leave in their pockets and who could give many a social philanthropist as to the internal administration of convict prisons; or to the swarthy wiry whose hand is against every man, and who the last month has been driving quietly Epsom from the Welsh border or the midland counties. We say nothing of the ladies, and their types and shades of race and colour and possible are endless; and you recognise something of their intensity and versatility when—aristas—their realer character is brought out by wine, beer, and when the devil's caldron begins to bubble late in the afternoon.

Racing is a fine old English sport no doubt and we should be seriously sorry to see racehorses go to the dogs. But we must have no great reason to be proud of annual suburban carnival; and if we wish show intelligent foreign friends the upside of English life, we cannot do better take them to Epsom. If a Foreign pig droopist or a blasé Mephistopheles care third-eye view of our social ills, the Circus and the Archie is his point of observation. Not that we can analyse or realise foul ingredients by simply looking down on something crowd. Let me say to a small politician meeting—Brother says and the drops of vulgar vice and crime that there in a small way. Then let him run by a few hundreds, throw in much that is infinitely worse and blacker, and form a ception of Epsom. We can imagine more striking contrast in nature than Downs on a bright spring day, left to sheep and singing birds, with the fresh breeze sweeping off the Surrey hills and the shadows dancing on the turf, and the Downish crush and bustle of a great event, London is holding characteristic carnival of vice and violating nature.

THE VICAR OF FROOME.—The Daily News, 17th June, 1893.—FROOME—More than two years ago, I think, when I first appeared in the press, Mr. W. Bennett was yesterday fully occupied with the vicar of Arches. The vicar of Froome is charged having promulgated heretical doctrines in a sermon preached by him in the disease of Lord. The defendant, who is a member of the vicar of Froome, was subpoenaed as a witness by the prosecutor, Dr. A. J. Stephens, Q.C., who is conducting the case against the vicar. well up to the head of Long Day (immediately below the new bridge at the Flat Rock Creek), or to the Willoughby Falls Bay, where engine-power such as that used at Hotany could be employed to throw the water into a reservoir at a high level, where it would reach the beach by means of the force of gravity alone. Settling aside, however, the question of conducting the water into the bay at present, the lake would be always there to fall back upon should our existing supply fail short or fall out; and it would be a matter of no small satisfaction to be relieved from the annually recurring apprehensions of a water famine.

As a work of great public utility the construction of the dam offers a fine field for the useful employment of our hard labour prisoners.

I will only add, that should the proposed water area be considered to afford a larger supply than is required, it is only necessary to fall further back with the dam.

The main branch of Middle Harbour alone is several miles in length, and drains the whole sweep of country embracing the Lane Cove and Pitt Water reaches. The whole of this vast tract of land, which the country surrounding it is in possession of the Crown, entirely unoccupied, and likely to remain so.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—In your issue of to-day there appears a letter signed "Anti-Nicotinean," in which tobacco is considered to be detrimental to health. Now, Sir, we all know that "the argument from excess is, an excess of argument," and even our daily food if taken in excess is dangerous; and although Smoker v. Anti-Nicotinean is a case to which no law has ever been able to give a satisfactory verdict, I would most decidedly give it to the former if he was moderate in the use of the weed. Take, for instance, a moderate drinker who takes two or three glasses of wine for dinner; he may be as much injured as the man who did from it; but if, instead of two or three, he was to take twenty-three glasses, he would feel "queer." Exactly the same way with smoking—in moderation it is harmless, but in excess it is dangerous. I know old smokers—fine, hearty old men—who say that if they did not have their one or two pipefuls a day they would be quite unwell.

This, Sir, will induce anti-nicotineans not to cry down a luxury which some is beneficial.

I am, yours, &c.,

The cargo of Mauritius sugar ex Isle of France will be offered at auction, by Messrs. Stubbs and Co., to-morrow (Friday).

We have Tasmanian papers to the 12th instant. The Cornwall Chronicle of that date states:—

"In the grain and four market, except of a retail character, is stationary. Some wheat is coming in to replace the quantity recently shipped to Hobart Town, and to be in readiness for the market should the weather be so favourable that they arrive here from Hobart Town. They will make the same large quantity of wheat back to Hobart Town. The Leno Wheat will be the first to come in, and of good price remains steady. Flour, all the 100 per ton; wheat the 100 per ton better, 75 per lb. in whole sale. In the oil, retail: for good quality, such as to be used in quality: Cane Crude, is bid to be 50 bushels; potatoes, 45 10s to 42 per ton; hay, 40s to 42 per ton in the market."

The Mercury of the 11th reports of the Hobart Town markets—

"The weekly markets have been opened on last night, and the business was very dull. Though we had no arrivals from England during the month, the markets are well supplied with goods from the continent, and are met as they arose by imports from the colonies. In the produce markets we note a greater firmness in all articles than in the corresponding months of the year, and, with the exception of wheat, which is at ten per cent, having advanced first to 111 and then to 112 at which it is now quoted with an upward tendency. Wheat has advanced from 100 to 102, and is now quoted at a moderate demand at quotations. English barley is in the market, owing to the want of more shown by the farmers in consequence of the late season, and is now quoted at 100, but it is not expected that it will be much in demand, as it is believed that brewers instead of purchasing Tasmanian grain, being so much better adapted for the purpose, will prefer to import the malted grain from England. Already two cargoes for the purpose have been ordered, and are expected to come to hand at an early date. Quotations for the grain vary from 100 to 102, and for the malted grain from 100 to 102. The price of the grain is firm, and the demand for it is increasing. The quantity sold according to latest reports is 100 tons."

The British Trade Journal of June 3 gives the following statistics respecting the coal trade of Great Britain:—

During the month of March, the exports of coal from the United Kingdom reached 985,269 tons, as compared with 840,153 tons in the corresponding month of 1969, and 615,905 tons in March, 1968. The clearances to France, Belgium, Holland, the United States, Spain, Italy, and West Germany increased to 588,170 tons. For the three months ending March 31 this year the exports of coal from Great Britain amounted to 2,861,115 tons, as compared with 2,137,475 tons in the corresponding three months of 1969, and 1,967,062 tons to the corresponding date of 1968. There has been a corresponding increase in the exports this year to France, Russia, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, the Netherlands, Holland, the United States, and British India. The value of the coal exported from the United Kingdom in the month of March 1970 amounted to £1,000,400, as compared with £869,000 in March, 1969, and in the three months ending March 31 this year the value amounted to £3,000,400, as compared with £2,500,000 in the corresponding period of 1969, and £1,900,441 in the first three months of 1968.

FENIAN ALARM AT TYNEMOUTH—Another Fenian alarm had been raised at Tynemouth Castle, according to the Newcastle Chronicle, it is alleged that, in connection with the recent attempt of the Fenian confederacy to run rifles and revolvers into Newcastle, a plot had been discovered by the military authorities at the castle and seize the powder magazine; and some persons state that if the plot had succeeded a vessel would have been hovering in the offing to run the powder into the city. The military authorities seem to have believed that they had discovered a plot to induce them to come to the conclusion that the castle was menaced; for it is reported that on Thursday night Major Cleveland arrived in haste at Tynemouth from Newcastle, and that the castle was strongly reinforced with a party of soldiers of the 86th Regiment from Newcastle. The service was delayed by the fact that a strong guard was placed over the powder magazine, and that the necessary companies of the 86th Regiment were paraded. The Chronicle remarks, and sent off with haste to Tynemouth, and they are camped in nine tents in the open yard close to the castle. The Fenian raiders were employed on Friday and Saturday night in fortifying the store room doors and windows, and
